ARCADIS AWARDED $10 MILLION GRiP® CONTRACT FOR U.S. ARMY

ARNHEM, THE NETHERLANDS March 14, 2008 ARCADIS (EURONEXT: ARCAD), the international consultancy, design, engineering and management services company today announced the award of a performance-based environmental remediation services contract with a value of almost $10 million under the GRiP® program for the Radford Army Ammunition Plant (RAAP), by the U.S. Army Environmental Command (USAEC).

RAAP is located 40 miles west of Roanoke, Virginia with a primary mission to manufacture munitions propellants which it has been performing since 1941. Explosive and metals residues, present at a number of sites located in two non-contiguous areas approximately six miles apart the Main Manufacturing Area and New River Unit, will be the focus of this restoration effort. With this award, the Army not only expects restoration that mitigates human health and ecological risks but that this work is achieved in a cooperative effort with USEPA Region III and the Virginia Department of Environmental Quality (VDEQ) and in a manner that secures a reduction in the life-cycle costs previously developed by the Government for restoration of the sites.

As an industry leader in environmental remediation, ARCADIS will address the Government's interests, in large part, through the application of its expertise in sediments and risk assessment as well as innovative technology applications for soil and groundwater restoration. Additionally, the firm will draw upon its closure focused, performance-based project management approaches to drive the sites to their needed end-points as expeditiously as possible.

We appreciate the opportunity to provide our innovative approaches and considerable experience to RAAP and to support the U.S. Army in meeting its environmental objectives, stated Steve Blake, CEO for ARCADIS U.S. Operations. Our ability to achieve the Army's objectives for this project stems from our experience applying our successful GRiP® approach (guaranteed remediation program) to difficult sites for more than a decade. We are confident that we can continue to deliver these quality services as the Army continues to expand its implementation of Performance Based Contracting for its contaminated sites.
