Partner Communications Co. Ltd.

Rationale

Corporate Credit Rating		iAA-/Stable
Business Profile	Financial Profile
An established position in the Israeli communication market with a market share of approx. 29%. A wide range of services which is expected to expand in the upcoming years. An extended impact on the operational profitability mainly from the increasing competition in the segment following an increase in the number of wireless operators	The company's financial policy supports, based on our estimate, a decreased leverage as from 2014 and onward and offsets the increased leverage levels from 2012-2013. The company is expected to report positive free cash flow for an extended period of time. Expected to continue to refrain from distributing dividends.

Outlook: Stable

The stable outlook reflects our estimate that the company will continue to implement in the near term a financial policy which supports deleveraging, so that it will be able to maintain the financial ratios which are commensurate with the rating in spite of continued challenges in the communication industry. We consider an S&P adjusted Debt to EBITDA ratio of about 3.5x and an adjusted operating profitability level of about 25% as commensurate with the current rating level.

Downside scenario

We will consider a rating downgrade if the company's adjusted debt to EBITDA ratio shall exceed 4.0x and the adjusted operational profitability level shall drop below 20%.

Upside scenario

A rating upgrade will be possible if the company's adjusted debt to EBITDA ratio shall drop to less than 3.0x and the adjusted operational profitability level shall exceed 30%. In addition, we expect Partner to maintain a liquidity level which is aligned with the company's investment requirements.

Partner Communications Co. Ltd.

Standard & Poor's Base-Case Scenario

Under our base scenario, we estimate that Partner will maintain a market share of around 30% in 2013-2014. In addition, we assume that no dividends will be distributed in 2013. We believe that Partner has growth opportunities in the intermediate term, such as investing in 4G, IPTV and landlines under the Wholesale Market Reform. However, the effects of these growth opportunities remain unclear, because they require a high level of additional investments.

Company Description

The company is one of the three largest communication companies in Israel and operates under the "Orange" brand. The company operates in two main segments: Wireless Communication and Wired Communication. The wireless communication segment contributes most of the revenues of the company and includes all of the services which are provided through the wireless network including: air-time, connectivity, roaming and content services. In addition, this activity includes equipment sales: cellular devices, tablets, data cards, modems etc'. The Wired Communication Segment includes communication services for commercial customers, international communication, dialing cards, ISP with added value services, servers and more. This segment includes the sales of communication routers and telephones.

Business Risk Profile

Increasing competitive pressure vs. a well-established market position

Our assessment of the business risk profile of the company is based on the following supporting factors: an established position as one of the largest players in the communication services market. The company is one of the three largest wireless companies in Israel with around 2.9 million subscribers as of June 2013 and a market share of approx. 29%; a wide range of communication services which is expected to expand in the upcoming years. In addition, the company is developing an IPTV (Internet Protocol Television) platform which will enable it to offer a wider variety of communication services when the wired segment will be opened to full competition. We believe that these supporting factors are offset by: increasing competition from the competing wireless companies, and especially Cellcom, Hot Mobile and Golan Telecom. This competition led, inter alia, to an increase of the churn rate to a record level of 38% in 2012 - 200,000 subscribers and a decrease in the operational profitability. However, in 2013, the company shows a certain moderation of the churn rate, with a churn rate of 9.4% in the second quarter of 2013 compared to 10.4% in Q1/2013. In addition, the company reported an increase in the ARPU (average revenue per user) for the first time in two years, with an ARPU of NIS 83 in the second quarter of 2013, compared to NIS 82 in the previous quarter.

Financial Risk Profile

Deleveraging with a limited cash flow generation capability

Our assessment of the company's financial risk profile is based on the following strengths: a gradual deleveraging which is expected to continue through the next couple of years; continued positive free cash flows for an extended period. In 2012, the company reported free cash flows amounting to NIS 1 billion, and we estimate it will report free cash flows of NIS 700-800 million in 2013; the company refrains from distributing a dividend and is expected to continue doing so in the near term, thus supporting deleveraging and strengthening of the financial base. These strengths are offset by continued price competition in the market following the entry of the new wireless operators, which led to a decrease of approx.13% in the ARPU in 2012 y-t-y, and a decrease of some 25% in the company's revenues from services.

Liquidity: Adequate

We assess Partner's liquidity as "adequate", under our criteria. We estimate that Partner's ratio of sources to uses of liquidity will be 1.2x in 2013 and 2014. This estimate is based on the cash balances and our cash income estimates. We believe that the main liquidity sources and uses of the company, as from 1 July 2013 and until the end of 2014, include:

Principal Liquidity Sources	Principal Liquidity Uses
NIS 500 million in cash and marketable financial assets as of 30 June, 2013. Operating cash flow of around NIS 1.5 billion.	NIS 640 million in debt maturities. NIS 620 million of capital expenditures. And NIS 250 of receivables securitization, in accordance to our methodological assumption about securitization.

Reconciliation

In order to create a common basis for comparing with other rated companies, we adjust the data in the financial statements which we use for calculating the financial ratios. The main adjustments we made on the 2012 data are:

- Debt adjustments due to operational leases in the amount of NIS 964 million.
- Detracting cash surplus, in accordance with our definition, from the reported financial debt.
- Debt adjustments for receivables securitization in the amount of NIS 321 million.
- Excluding NIS 111 million of other income from the EBITDA.
