GOL is One of First Foreign Companies to Comply with Sarbanes-Oxley Section 404

São Paulo, April 13, 2006 GOL Linhas Aéreas Inteligentes (NYSE: GOL and Bovespa: GOLL4), Brazil's low-cost, low-fare airline, announced that it is one of the first Foreign Private Issuers (FPIs) in South America to comply with Section 404 of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act ( 404 ). Using the criteria for internal controls set by the Committee of Sponsoring Organizations of the Treadway Commission (COSO), GOL worked throughout 2005 and achieved 404 compliance in advance of the SEC deadline. The SEC requires 404 compliance for 20-Fs filed after July 2006.

Sarbanes-Oxley, a U.S. law created in 2002 to protect shareholders of public companies against potential accounting fraud or conflicts of interest, requires improvements of financial and non-financial internal controls, improved processes and greater transparency in business activities, resulting in a higher level of corporate governance. Part of this legislation, Section 404, the most rigorous of all, requires an annual evaluation of controls and internal procedures for the distribution of financial reports. In addition, it requires that independent auditors attest to management assertions related to the effectiveness of internal controls and procedures for preparing and distributing financial reports.

To become one of the select few FPIs compliant with 404's strict guidelines, GOL worked diligently in 2005. The Company created executive and board committees, as well as an operational team involved in project implementation. GOL worked with Ernst & Young Risk Consultants and Big5 Consulting to document and define internal processes related to preparing and distributing financial reports. Controls were tested by management and audited by independent auditors.

With this unqualified certification, GOL improved its internal procedures, reinforcing the Company's strong commitment to best practices in corporate governance, says Richard Lark, Chief Financial Officer of GOL. It is extremely important that GOL maintain strong internal control systems to assure accuracy of financial reports, better transparency and timely disclosure of results.

GOL has also complied with Sarbanes-Oxley Section 302, which requires executives to accept personal responsibility for disclosure controls and procedures. Annual financial statements must include certification that management has evaluated the effectiveness of its internal controls. Completing the intense work to comply with Sections 302 and 404 puts GOL in an even better position to maintain and improve effectiveness of its internal controls, says Lark.
