"We are pleased both with the Company's third quarter performance and with the continued broad acceptance of our technology products and services by our core markets and customers. In addition to surpassing our financial plan for the quarter, we continue to make operational and strategic gains. Strategically, the recent acquisition of Springer-Miller Systems, Inc., which closed on October 1 of this year, will strengthen our competitive position across a broad array of hospitality technology markets. Not only do we fully expect this to be an accretive transaction, but we believe that the combination of our expertise and knowledge in hospitality technology and strong relationships within the marketplace will enable us to improve both the depth and breadth of our combined businesses," said PAR Technology Chairman and CEO John W. Sammon. "Operationally, our profitability continues to grow as we gained market share in our core businesses. We attribute this growth to increasing demand for both our hospitality technology solutions and our Government design and engineering services business and believe that these trends will continue. We are confident in the potential of our Company and our position as a leader in our markets and remain secure in our ability to continue executing our strategic objectives."
