At the 40th Tokyo Motor Show 2007, Hino Motors, Ltd., a subsidiary of Toyota Motor Corporation, is featuring a new concept motorcoach with windows using Research Frontiers' patented SPD-Smart light-control technology. The S'elega Premium, with its variable tint SPD "smart" windows, was shown earlier today at a press briefing by senior executives of Hino Motors at the Tokyo Motor Show. Members of the media were able to experience the benefits of smart windows while sitting in Hino Motors' top-of-the-line S'elega Premium luxury tour bus on display at the show.

SPD-Smart automotive windows allow vehicle occupants to instantly, precisely and uniformly control the amount of sunlight, glare and heat passing through the windows, sunroofs and other glazings. They also block more than 99% of harmful UV radiation.

The S'elega Premium, which has five large SPD-Smart window panels totaling over 11 square meters of glass (more than 36 square feet) on the side of the motorcoach, is featured in a promotional video from Hino and can be seen and experienced at the Tokyo Auto Show through November 11, 2007. The SPD-SmartGlass laminated windows on the S'elega Premium are curved and are approximately 1.1 meters (43.4 inches) tall and most are over 2 meters (81 inches) wide.

The SPD-Smart windows for the S'elega Premium concept vehicle were produced and supplied by Asahi Glass Company, a licensee of Research Frontiers.

Research Frontiers' press release (which is included herewith as an exhibit), is available on various web sites including Research Frontiers' website at <http://www.SmartGlass.com>.
