Item 5. Other Events

As previously disclosed in the Company's filings under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, the Company's investment in its Argentine sugar and citrus operations expose the Company to foreign currency risks. Seaboard Corporation had approximately $168,000,000 in net assets denominated in Argentine Pesos, before the effects of the peso devaluation described below. Since December 20, 2001, the Argentine government had placed restrictions on the exchange of currency. On January 6, 2002, the government of Argentina officially ended the one Peso to one U.S. Dollar parity, which was in effect in Argentina during the preceding 11 years. On January 11, 2002, the currencies began market trading and resulted in an exchange rate of 1.70

Argentine Pesos to one U.S. Dollar. As a result of this devaluation, Seaboard Corporation expects to record a write-down of net assets and a corresponding currency translation adjustment of approximately $69 million as a reduction to shareholders' equity as of December 31, 2001. No tax benefit will be provided related to this reduction to shareholders' equity. The reduction will be recorded as other comprehensive loss. Further fluctuations in the currency translation will be recorded as other comprehensive income (loss) in subsequent periods.
