ING Capital Life Awarded Shenyang License

ING Capital Life Insurance Company Ltd. (ING Capital Life), ING Groep N.V.'s joint venture with Beijing Capital Group, today announced that following the formal launch of its Beijing Branch operations, it had secured a separate license to set-up a second branch in Shenyang. It will be the first Sino-foreign joint venture to begin operations in the city.

The announcement came during a visit by ING Groep's Chairman and CEO, Michel Tilmant, who personally received the confirmation from the China Insurance Regulatory Commission's Vice Chairman, Mr. Li Kemu, during a meeting planned as part of his two day tour of the Chinese capital.

ING Capital Life announced two weeks ago that it had secured authorisation to underwrite group insurance and also to market its business across Liaoning Province, including the city of Shenyang. This latest license will allow the set-up of the ING Capital Life Shenyang Branch and will also speed up the company's expansion in Liaoning Province and later to other markets in North China.

This second branch plans to hire 300 agents initially to sell a product range which includes life and health insurance, accidental insurance and group insurance products. ING Capital Life Shenyang Branch hopes to begin operations in Q4 2005 following receipt of an operational license from the China Insurance Regulatory Commission and a business registration license from the local city authorities.

The new branch will look to mirror the success of the Dalian-based headquarters, which, since operations began in December 2002, has hired 1,300 agents to sell 25 types of insurance products to its customer base of 37,000. ING Capital Life in Dalian is now the third largest provider of individual insurance in terms of new business premiums. ING Capital Life Beijing Branch began selling policies in the capital in January 2005 and on 16 May started selling bancassurance products through Bank of Beijing, in which ING Group has a 19.9% stake.
