reference banks (which may include the Selling Agent or its affiliates) in the London interbank market, as selected by the Calculation Agent (after consultation with us), to provide the Calculation Agent with its offered quotation for deposits in U.S. dollars for a three-month period commencing on the first day of each Interest Period, to prime banks in the London interbank market at approximately 11:00 a.m., London time, on such Interest Determination Date and in a principal amount that is representative of a single transaction in U.S. dollars in that market at such time. Rounding Convention:

All U.S. dollar amounts used in or resulting from any calculation on the Notes will be rounded to the nearest cent. All percentages resulting from any calculation with respect to the Notes will be rounded, if necessary, to the nearest one hundred-thousandth of a percent, with five one-millionths of a percentage point rounded upwards, e.g., 9.876545% (or .09876545) being rounded to 9.87655% (or .0987655).

Additional Risk Factor:

Reference Rate / Interest Payment Risk: Because the Interest Rate on the Notes is a floating rate, you will be exposed to risks not associated with a conventional fixed-rate debt instrument. These risk include fluctuation of the Reference Rate (and hence, the Interest Rate) and the possibility that for any given Interest Period you may receive a lesser amount of interest than for one or more other Interest Periods. We have no control over a number of factors that may affect market interest rates, including geopolitical conditions and economic, financial, political, regulatory, agricultural, judicial or other events that affect the markets generally and that are important in determining the existence, magnitude, and longevity of these risks and their results. In recent years, interest rates have been volatile, and volatility also could be characteristic of the future. In addition, the floating Interest Rate for the Notes may be less than the floating rate payable on a similar debt instrument of the same maturity issued by us or an issuer of comparable creditworthiness.

U.S. Federal Income Tax
Consequences:

The Notes will be treated as “variable rate debt instruments” for U.S. federal income tax purposes. The discussion of tax consequences in the section of the prospectus supplement entitled “U.S. Federal Income Tax Consequences” applies to the Notes, notwithstanding the limitation therein to notes that provide for stated interest payable at one or more fixed rates.
